

America.Net is a privately owned retail Internet Service Provider with a rich tradition of helping telecommunications companies successfully enter the Internet industry. America.net began as a bulletin board service in 1992. With the advent of the World Wide Web in 1994, we started offering residential and commercial Internet services and helping other companies offer Internet service to their subscribers. We became one of the first commercial Internet Service Providers in the United States, and the first to provide wholesale Internet services to other providers.

Our unique business model levels out the costs for those who want to provide Internet service. With America.net you have the opportunity to provide broadband service options that will benefit your community without needing additional personnel to operate and manage the business or take support calls from subscribers.

Whether you are operating an Open Access broadband network, or just need someone to manage the retail portion of your broadband service, America.net retail Internet services will keep your broadband sales and customer service running smoothly and efficiently. We can market your service, sign up subscribers to your network, and handle device activation. We can also provide add-on services to your subscribers like residential and commercial VoIP, IPTV, and email accounts, all backed up by our experienced technical support staff.

America.Net helps you provide internet service without the complications and unpredictable situations of managing everything on your own. We reduce the complexity and costs that are typically associated with activities like device configuration and activation, offering email service or managing a voice network, and we assure the whole process is seamless. And, with our comprehensive 24x7x365 skilled customer support support team, your community will be thrilled with the level of care they receive.

We Provide:

- Marketing Services
- Customer Equipment Activation & Billing
- 24x7x365 End User Technical Support
- Residential & Commercial Voice Packages
- Streaming Internet TV Service
- Email Hosting
- Internet Security Suite
- Remote Network Monitoring & Engineering Assistance

ZCorum™

Contact Us

ZCorum

4501 North Point Parkway, Suite 125
Alpharetta, GA 30022

1-800-909-9441